

PACKAGING MADE FROM PLANTS

With cups and straws in the news, single-use packaging has become top of mind. Businesses are becoming more conscious of what their containers are made from and how they're being disposed of. As a result, people are seeking greener packaging. That's where Vegware comes in!

WHAT IS VEGWARE?

Vegware makes catering disposables made from renewable, lower carbon, reclaimed or recycled materials. Our plant-based catering disposables are made from renewable, lower carbon or recycled materials. What's more, Vegware can be recycled along with food waste and break down in under 12 weeks time in commercial composting. This presents a simple, timesaving opportunity for foodservice to adopt greener practices as there's no need for businesses or consumers to separate food from their packaging before recycling.

WHY SWITCH TO COMPOSTABLE DISPOSABLES?

Combining plastic and card in foodservice packaging creates recycling challenges, making contamination inevitable, so the result is incineration or landfill. For disposables destined for serving food, it makes sense to use materials that can be recycled together with food. With compostable disposables, food isn't contamination, it's a vital ingredient in the composting process.

SHOULD I USE VEGWARE IF I CAN'T COMPOST?

The earth has finite resources. Disposables are used for such a short time, so it makes sense to switch to renewable materials, reserving conventional plastics for applications where they can't be easily replaced. Lots of people enjoy using plant-based materials, knowing they are a simple way to reduce carbon and help their business go green.

Composting collections are still regional rather than UK-wide, but we are proud to be actively driving change. Our Environmental team are the UK's experts on routes to commercial composting - we've been working on this full-time since 2012.

By choosing compostables, foodservice businesses can actively drive changes in UK recycling. The more compostables there are in use, the more we can work with the waste sector to extend collections UK-wide.
